Story

102. Harry Learns his Lesson

Once, there was a boy named Harry. Though he was a good boy yet he had a bad habit of eating the whole day. One day, as usual, he went to the kitchen and opened a glass jar to eat some snacks. Now, the jar had a narrow mouth. He opened the lid and put his hand inside the jar and picked a handful of snacks. But when he tried to pull his hand out, it got stuck in the jar. Harry's father was watching all this. He said to Harry, "You have picked up too many snacks in your fist, more than your little hand can keep. Let go of the snacks and pick only one and you can pull your hand out easily. Always take as much as you can handle." Embarrassed, Harry did just as his father said and pulled out his hand from the jar.

Moral: Do not be greedy.

22. The Jealous Goat

Once upon a time, a villager was a proud owner of a donkey as well as a goat. The donkey used to carry heavy loads. Sometimes, the villager lent his donkey to others as well. As the donkey worked hard all day, the villager fed him more than the goat. This was not liked by the goat. She became jealous of the donkey. So, one day, she advised the donkey, "You work hard and rarely get any rest. So, you must act as though you are ill. In this way, you will get some rest for a few days." The donkey did as he was advised. The alarmed villager called a doctor. The doctor said, "You must feed your donkey some goat's soup." The villager at once killed his goat and made soup for the donkey. Alas! That was the end of the jealous goat!

Moral: Jealousy leads to one's downfall.

12. Poor Dassie without a Tail

Millions of years ago, the lion was the only animal who had a tail! One day, he thought, 'Why am I the only one with a tail? All the animals should have tails too!' So, he got tails made for all the animals. The excited animals went to get their tails. But someone did not go. It was the dassie! He felt too lazy to go and get his tail. So, he said to the monkey, "As you are already going, bring my tail too." The lion had selected a nice long tail for the dassie. The monkey liked the tail so much that he attached that tail to his own. He danced around and showed off the tail to the dassie. The dassie could do nothing. Further more, he felt too lazy to pursue the monkey. So, he did not get his tail back. No wonder, he remains tailless to this day!

Moral: Don't depend on others.
