Moral: Do not be proud of your strength.

always win. The weak can also win," shouted. "O mighty Bull! The mouse do not let them, from inside the hole, the mouse could not find him. He was very dejected. Again, He looked for the mouse but again inside the hole. The bull woke up in the hole again, and then ran back mouse slowly came out of his hole. He off to sleep outside the mouse's hole. The mouse: soon, he was tired and went the hole with his horns but could not find but the mouse hid inside his hole. The bull dug was very angry. He tried to catch the mouse, going, the mouse came and bit him. The bull A mouse heard this. One day, as the bull was "No one can beat me, for I am the strongest of all." Once, a bull was very proud of his strength. He boasted,

68. The Broken Horn

Once upon a time, there was a young goat. He was very naughty and curious. He used to run here and there out of curiosity and the poor goatherd had to search for him and bring him back. One day, as usual, the goat went exploring. "Oh no! That naughty goat is missing again! Where has he gone now?" cried the angry goatherd. He found the goat and blew his whistle to bring him back. But the goat did not listen. Angry, the goatherd threw a stone at the goat. The stone hit the goat's horn, which broke into two pieces. The goatherd got scared that his master would get angry at him for breaking the horn. So, he said to the goat, "Do not tell the master that I broke your horn." The goat said, "You fool, I won't have to say a thing. The broken horn will tell on its own!"

Moral: Do not hide things which cannot be hidden.

58. The Clothes

Once upon a time, a bear went to the river fishing. As he was fishing, he noticed a huge trunk lying on the river banks. The bear, out of curiosity, opened the trunk. To his delight, the trunk was full of lovely colourful clothes. He quickly took out a shirt, a hat, a tie and a white coat, and wore them. A monkey saw him and asked, "From where did you get these clothes?" The bear showed him the trunk full of clothes. Soon word spread and all the animals gathered around the bear. Each wanted something to wear. Soon, a fight broke out. They snatched, pulled, grabbed and scratched. All the clothes in the trunk were torn into pieces and none had anything to wear. The bear shouted, "See what you all have done. Now there are no clothes for anyone." The animals could only stare in dismay as the bear walked away.

Moral: Fighting only leads to loss.
