62. The Illiterate Villager

Once, there was an illiterate villager. He often saw people wearing glasses while reading. He thought, 'If I have glasses, I can also read like these people.' So, one day, he went to a glass shop. The shopkeeper gave him various pairs of glasses and a book. The villager tried all the glasses. But he could not read anything. The shopkeeper gave him a doubtful look. Then he looked at the book. It was upside down! The shopkeeper said, "Perhaps you don't know how to read." The villager said, "No, I don't. I want to buy glasses so that I may read like the others. But I can't read with any of these glasses." The shopkeeper burst out laughing. He explained to the villager, "My dear friend, spectacles don't help you to read or write. They only help you to see better. First of all, you must learn to read."

Moral: Do not copy others.

110. The Fortune Teller

Once upon a time, there was a man who used to tell the fortunes of people. He was a fortune teller. One day, the fortune teller was telling the fortune as usual when a man came to him and said, "Somebody has broken the door of your house and has stolen many valuables. You must hurry. Go home at once!" The fortune teller was very shocked to hear the news. He could not utter a word out of shock. He just ran to his house as fast as he could. He was in such a hurry that he left all his things behind. Now, one of his customers saw him rushing and commented, "Every day he tells the fortunes of so many people but today he could not see his own future! I really do wonder!" The fortune teller felt very embarrassed.

Moral: No one can predict the future.

28. The Sun and the Crow

Once, the Sun fell in love with a princess. To please her, he put a gem in a bag and told a crow to give it to the princess. During those days, crows had white feathers. As the crow was on his way, his nose caught the delicious aroma of food. Upon looking down, the crow saw a feast in progress. The greedy crow hung the bag on a tree and went to eat the food. While the crow was feasting, a thief took out the gem and filled the bag with a cow's dung. Later, the unsuspecting crow picked up the bag and gave it to the princess. To his surprise, she became very upset as the bag was full of the cow's dung. The Sun saw the princess holding the bag full of the cow's dung and was so furious that his scorching gaze fell on the crow and his feathers burned down. His feathers have been black ever since!

Moral: Duty should always come first.
